Initial situation

A parent of twins says that there were hardly any inclusive books in the local library. She could hardly find any books featuring children who, like her daughter, have physical disabilities.

The care treasure

The parent discussed the issue with library staff. The staff advised the parent to look for inclusive books and let the library know which ones they found. The library ordered the books and added them to its collection.

Benefit

The family now has the opportunity to borrow books from the library in which their physically disabled child can also recognise themselves.

At the same time, the family and the library have contributed to greater inclusion, which also helps others.
